

ABSTRACT

[0040] A system that tests a network protocol. This test system allows a user to modify a protocol in the protocol stack of the network while the test is being performed. The system receives a command to modify the protocol. The system then determines the protocol to modify and performs the modification.